- Your tone of voice cannot be heard (“why did you write that”)
- You feel able to say things or send things that you may not say to their face
- It’s easy to get sucked into conversations, comments and photos
- It’s really easy for people to find out about you – information, schools, family
- It actually creates ‘fake friends’
- It’s often a place for nasty banter (example)

Year 8 boy in response to a comment...

Please die, just die, do it now, make it slow and painful. No one wants you on this earth, you are a complete f*ing disease to the planet, you are a dumb whore who needs to die. F off. F you. Die

PS4™

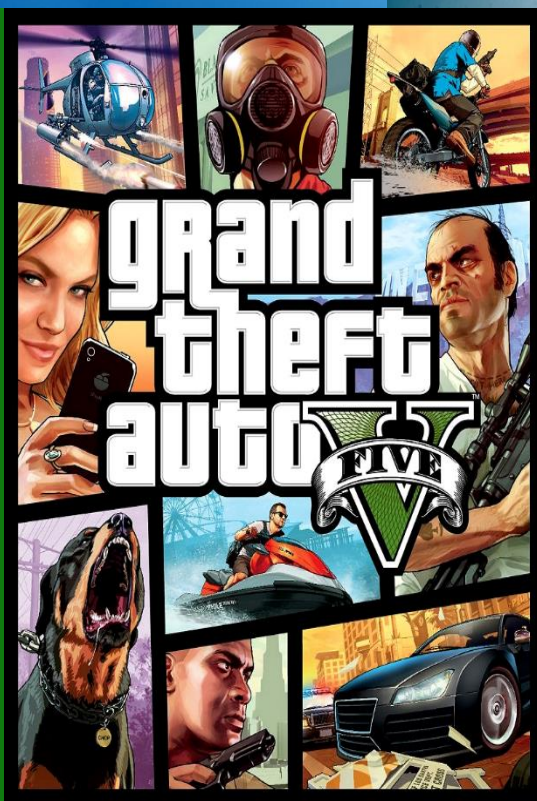

GAMING

XBOX

A strip club shows women naked. They push their breasts toward the camera, and players can direct their hands to touch the strippers' bodies when bouncers aren't looking. Prostitutes attempt to sell themselves on the street, and many of the game's female characters are clad in revealing clothing. Men and women are shown having sex, though they aren't naked. Some scenes imply masturbation, oral sex, and even sex with a corpse, including pleased moaning sounds. Men's genitals are shown, though in non-sexual context.

Highly addictive and can access other players online. Can never be entirely sure who you are playing. Although seemingly harmless it can be quite violent and involves zombies, monsters and blood
